WILTWYCK CHAPTER REVIEWS PAST YEAR

Annual Meeting Held Thursday Afternoon—Reports Given and Plans Made For Future Activity by the Society.

The annual meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., was held on Thursday afternoon at the chapter house, there being an excellent attendance, and Mrs. Philip Elting, the newly elected regent, presiding. In assuming the new office, Mrs. Elting paid a fine tribute to her predecessors and bespoke her own aspirations to be as worthy a follower in their footsteps as it was within her power to be. She asked for the loyal support of all the members, in her difficult task, their leniency and encouragement. She also asked that each member try to bring into the chapter one new member, so that at the end of the year, the membership might be possible. Moreover, she urged each member who was a regular attendant at the meetings to try and bring to all subsequent meetings some member who had grown out of the habit of coming to the meetings. Calling attention to the fact that the chapter had first purchased the chapter house, then renovated it and maintained it, Mrs. Elting expressed the wish that it might be more than a house; that it might be a home. In order to more fully carry out this idea, she asked that the chapter grant the privilege of opening the house on the third Thursday afternoon of each month, to all members of the chapter for a purely social gathering together, to become better acquainted. With some of her best friends, many of her good friends, in the chapter, the regent asked to include among either past or future members, those who could be accomplished by such informal meetings, where the women could bring fancy or plain sewing or knitting or have a game of cards. The request was granted, and the chapter was invited to be the guests of the regent on Thursday afternoon, December 16, at as nearly 2:30 o'clock as possible. They will spend the time from that hour until four in becoming acquainted, and then some other form of entertainment will be provided, ending with what the newspapers term "dainty refreshments." On motion of Mrs. Hyman Kosso, it was voted that different members of the chapter might act as hostesses at these informal gatherings, and that no particular entertainment was to be expected of any one, beyond the general sociability of meeting each other under the home roof of the chapter house.

The monthly report of the registrar, Mrs. T. D. Lewis, presented the name of one new member, Miss Anna Reed Mitchell of Rhinebeck. The regent then paid a fine tribute to the late Miss Abbott, a chapter member whose death had occurred so recently, and also to Mrs. Collier, a former member of Wiltwyck Chapter, and first regent of Hendrick Hudson Chapter of Hudson. It was moved that the committee on resolutions, should draft appropriate expressions of sympathy to be sent to the Hudson Chapter.

The annual reports were given as next in order of procedure. Miss Baker, as recording secretary, reported 9 regular meetings during the year, with an average attendance of 38 members. The annual election of officers had taken place. The local board had held 9 regular meetings, with an average attendance of 10 members, and there had been 3 special meetings. There were 190 members enrolled, 12 being new members. There had been 2 transfers and 5 deaths. Mrs. Elvyn Bogart, corresponding secretary, reported 16 letters received during the past year, and 25 letters written. The annual report of the treasurer, Mrs. Brodhead, was accepted, having been verified by the auditing committee. Mrs. T. D. Lewis, registrar, reported that at the beginning of the year the enrolled membership was 185. Since that time, 12 new members had been added; 5 had been removed by death; 2 had been transferred, making the present enrollment to be 190 members. 51 postals and 7 letters had been written. 7 sets of papers had been reprinted. 2 accompanying transfers. Others were requested as assistance in joining other chapters. Many preliminary blanks had been sent out.

One of the features of the annual meetings of the chapter always looked forward to with especial interest is the yearly report of the historian and Mrs. A. V. V. Kenyon all and feelingly summed up the year's happenings in the chapter as follows:

Historian's Report.
Madame Regent and Members of Wiltwyck Chapter:
The year 1915 has not been one of much activity in the Chapter, because we have been in mourning for the loss of many beloved members. The years roll on with inevitable precision and we can do naught to prevent them from rushing us on. To whatever fate may await us, each year sees the names of many of the pioneers of the Chapter marked with the "final cross," but each year also brings us many new members to take their places. The new succeeds the old, the high lights obliterate the shadows and the world goes on.
So, while the historian's report is, in the main, a sad one, there are many bright spots to relieve its gloom.

We have had many valuable gifts from good friends outside the Chapter, for which we are truly thankful. First, in January, Holdridge O. Colling of Los Angeles, California, sent us a check for $25, which was promptly applied to the mortgage, thereby delighting the hearts of the trustees.

In April came the beautiful, antique inkstand for the Board Room from Mrs. James Ross of Montreal, Canada. In June, Mrs. Charles E. Cantine, who has been more than generous to us, gave the curious, old mirror, with the death mask of Washington. In October came a Revolutionary sword and Testament from Wilber Smith of Saugerties. All these gifts were most gratefully received and have added much to the interest of our beautiful home.

The programs for the meetings during the year have been very successful and entertaining, while the sociability of the Chapter has been greatly stimulated by the informal gatherings at the close of the meetings.

There has been but one festivity in the Chapter House this year; the card party on February 22, and even that was given for the benefit of the poor of the city.

In February was held the memorial service for Miss Mary Isabella Forsyth, the founder of Wiltwyck Chapter, and its first Regent. Beautiful tributes of love and appreciation of her noble character were paid by all present, either verbally or in emotion too deep for words. Many poems from her pen were read, and as a lasting memorial the Chapter will give annually $10 to the Industrial Home, for which she labored in love and faith.

Chapter Day was spent in New Paltz, upon the invitation of Mrs. George Wells DuBois, one of our loyal members in that historic old village; a perfect day, long to be remembered. A little play called "Joan of Arc in Domremy," giving but one day in the life of this French heroine, the day upon which she decides to follow the calling of her strange vision, was enacted by local talent, upon the lawn of Mrs. DuBois's home. The play is adapted from that of J. Fabre by Madame Carlo Polite and was translated into English by Miss Gertrude Le Fevre, such as only nature could give. The Shawangunk mountains in the background, upon which glowed all the shades of autumnal colorings, a veritable "fairytale," in the center of the "stage," in which the inspired maiden saw her visions and heard their voices; the luxuriant velvet lawn; the flowers, birds and sunshine; combined to transport the audience into the France of Joan. We lived the day with Joan, who was so real that we could scarcely come back to the present when the curtain had subsided. After the applause had subsided, Mrs. Philip Elting, as acting regent, expressed the pleasure and appreciation of all present in a speech that brought proud tears to the eyes of those who were so inspired by the scene that she spoke "with a silver tongue."

The guests were invited into the house, which was beautifully decorated with autumn foliage and flowers, and were served with delicious refreshments, thus ending a most enjoyable day.

The Chapter has been called upon to contribute its quota to many a D. A. R. project, and as usual, has cheerfully paid its share. We bought two square feet of land for the additional square foot for Continental Hall and a scheme for the liquidation of the debt on Continental Hall, in celebration of the 25th anniversary of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

We received two invitations to celebrate Flag Day with neighboring Chapters; the Saugerties Chapter and that of Hudson, both of which were declined because of the death of our regent, Mrs. W. R. Harrison. At the December meeting, last year, Mrs. Harrison, the newly elected regent, was present and called to the chair, where she had only time to give us her personal greetings and read her appointments for the coming year. Shortly after this she became ill and it was not until after that she was able to come to another meeting, when she presided for the first and only time. No one who was present at that meeting will ever forget the beautiful prayer which came from her pale lips; the sweet dignity of her manner to all; and the great pleasure it gave her to be with us all again, and as our regent. To those of us who saw her as she left for home, there will always come the picture of her as she went through the big front door and turned to smile a last good bye; her arms filled with flowers; her face radiant with happiness. She never came in the door again.

In January, Mrs. Emma L. Heard, who had met with only a few times, she was a non-resident and therefore almost a stranger to many of us, died here in Kingston. In February, Mrs. F. J. R. Clarke, one of our charter members, and a firm friend of the Chapter, left us to join the host awaiting us on the "other side." With an intellect much beyond the ordinary and a large and noble character, she combined the most sensitive nature, the warmest affections and most loyal friendship in her personality. Charitable and just, practical and generous, keenly alive and quick to discern, one always knew just where to find her and was fortunate to be called her friend.

Mrs. Georgianna Gansse, another good and true member of Wiltwyck Chapter, died in August and her bright, interested face will never more inspire us to do better—and more.

And only last week the fifth member of our Chapter, Miss Ellen Abbott, closed her eyes in sleep, after much suffering patiently borne.

Wiltwyck Chapter is the "Mother" of many other chapters in nearby towns and I wish to mention this in connection with the loss of Hendrick Hudson Chapter of its founder and first regent, Mrs. Frederick Collier, who was a member of our Chapter, in "good and excellent standing," when she left to form the Hudson Chapter. A woman of many accomplishments, gracious and hospitable, she was well fitted to assume the responsibilities of her position and office; and it was largely through her efforts that her Chapter is so comfortably and suitably housed in a home of its own. We are proud to have had her as a member of Wiltwyck Chapter, and extend our sympathy to the Hendrick Hudson Chapter of Hudson.

Each year seems to increase the list of those who have gone before, as some one so beautifully expressed it, to be "one more loving spirit hovering over Wiltwyck Chapter; one more loyal daughter waiting just over on the other side to welcome us when we, too, shall be called home."

I cannot close my report until I have paid my tribute to you, Madame Regent, in which I am certain the entire Chapter joins me, for your admirable administration as acting regent for the past year. The most difficult task has been yours; to take up the duties of another and perform them as she wished. You have never faltered, no matter how trying the circumstances—but have gone forward with steadfast purpose; excellent judgment and a smiling face. I ask those present to rise with me, to express our gratitude to you for the services in the year that is past and our firm allegiance for the coming year.

I greet you, Madame Regent.
ANNA V. V. KENYON.
Historian.

Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R.
The entire chapter rose with alacrity in compliance with Mrs. Kenyon's words, and Mrs. Elting feelingly expressed her appreciation of the kind words and all they conveyed.

After the annual reports, Mrs. Elvyn Bogart, delegate to the State Conference of the D. A. R., recently held at Hotel Astor in New York City, gave a clear, concise, yet adequate account of the conference. She gave the gist of the addresses; all the interesting details of the social functions, and reported the results of the election, all in a most admirable manner.

The program for the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Louis Bastien, and was as follows: Violin solo, "Prayer and Lullaby," by Ovid Musin, by Miss Beattie Tobey, pupil of Ovid Musin. In response to the enthusiastic encore, Miss Tobey played "Schon Rosmarie." Mrs. Bogart then read a reading, "Buying a Railroad Ticket," and being heartily encored, responded with "Angeline Johnson," and again with a "Good Night Story." Miss Tobey's second selection was a Beethoven "Minuet," which was followed by a "Scotch Lullaby," as an encore. Both young ladies were given, not only a rising vote of thanks, but also a bunch of large chrysanthemums.

An annual meeting was brought to a close with a social hour and the serving of afternoon tea, Mrs. William A. Frey and Mrs. Charles Wood acting as hostesses.

Asks $200,000 For Land.

A commission has begun hearings in New York to fix the value of land required for an extension of the state road from Haverstraw. This will be a portion of trunk route No. 3 passing through Kingston. Seven acres of the Peck property are needed and Mr. Peck, through his attorney, Judge A. H. F. Seeger of Newburgh, asks for $200,000. He alleges damage will be caused to his water power, to his residential interests and to his large sand bank.

George Decker Discharged.

The case against George Decker on the complaint of J. S. Corning was tried before Justice A. T. Canfield in Highland last Saturday. Mr. Decker was arrested by Officer Collins on Friday, charged with stealing bay mattresses, etc. Mr. Corning of Red Top was represented by Edward DuBois and S. G. Carpenter appeared for Mr. Decker. The charge was petit larceny. Decker was discharged.

No Smith, Brown or Jones.

A state assembly without a "Smith," a "Brown" or a "Jones" on its roster is the unusual character of the lower house of the legislature which will convene next month. Times have been when it was necessary to prefix the list of "Smiths" with initials, and likewise with the "Browns" and the "Joneses," but that won't be necessary this winter.

Old Dam Being Removed.

Work upon the removal of the old state dam at the foot of Middleburg street, Troy, will be resumed in earnest within a week, when it is expected that all of the boats in the upper Hudson will be locked through for the winter. Water is now passing over all of the new dam which has been in course of construction by government engineers for two years.

Middletown Has Public Nurse.

Miss Suzanne M. Cross, who has been the visiting nurse connected with the Middletown dispensary for the past year, will on January 1 go with the board of health as a public health nurse, having special charge of tuberculosis cases.

Filing Time on Telegrams.

The Western Union Telegraph Company has begun including on the date line of each message the hour at which the message was filed at the sending office.

LADA HAILED AS GREATEST OF INTERPRETATIVE DANCERS.

Lada, is the foreign sounding name of this Duluth girl who is now being hailed by critics as the most interesting, fascinating and original of the host of interpretative dancers who have lately come before American audiences. Lada is an expert dancer. Her technical equipment is prodigious, her art and its mechanics must not be judged by conventional standards. She never whirls on a pivot toe. She never leaps into the domain of the acrobat. Apparently she has absorbed the best from every school, classic and modern, and has discarded all that seemed hollow form. To say that Lada is a dancer, gives only a faint idea of an art in which muscular effort is so exquisitely concealed. Her supple body and mobile face become in action the visualized voice of music. Her symbolical vocabulary has no limitation. The picture shows Lada in an old Russian peasant dance. Lada will dance at the Butterfly Ball next Thursday night.

TO MAKE APPEAL TO MAKE A DEAL FOR MARQUARDT BE EMBARRASSING

Attorney Fessenden to Ask Governor Whitman to Commute Death Sentence of Mrs. Amelia Pauls's Slaying to Life Imprisonment.

Ludwig Marquardt will die in the electric chair at Sing Sing during the week of December 13, unless Governor Whitman heads the plea of his attorney, Newton H. Fessenden, and commutes the death sentence to life imprisonment. Mr. Fessenden will personally interview the governor early next week and at that time will urge him to exercise the pardoning power and commute the sentence of death to that of life imprisonment on various grounds the chief of which being the advanced age of Marquardt who is 50 years old.

Marquardt on August 5, 1914, brutally murdered Mrs. Amelia Pauls on Third avenue. The crime was one of the most horrible ever committed. He had been paying attention to Mrs. Pauls, who was a widow with several small children, and she had repulsed him. On the day in question she was returning home in the evening with her two little boys and Marquardt who was lurking near leaped at her and threw her down. While he held her there he drew a razor from his pocket and cut her throat in the presence of her little boys who were two of the principal witnesses in the trial of the case in county court when the jury convicted Marquardt of murder in the first degree which verdict was upheld by the court of appeals in a recent decision.

Marquardt was a married man and came to this country from Russia leaving his wife and children behind. He worked as a laborer and saved up money to send back to the old country to pay the transportation of his family. When his family came over the children were allowed to land but the wife was deported on account of her eyes being afflicted. Some time later Marquardt scraped and saved $60 and sent it over to his wife and again she got as far as the port of New York and was again deported. Finally on the third attempt she was allowed to land and join her husband and children. After a short while they went to Detroit, and Marquardt followed. Later Marquardt returned to Kingston but his wife remained in Detroit. Then it was that Marquardt became interested in Mrs. Pauls and spent considerable time in her company.

Marquardt was ably defended during the course of the trial by Mr. Fessenden assisted by Joseph M. Fowler. The case was prosecuted by District Attorney Cunningham and Assistant District Attorney Traver.

Alleged Counterfeiter.

Nick Carfano, Newburgh Italian, is under arrest on a charge of possessing and passing counterfeit half dollar pieces.

UPTOWN CHURCHES PLAN REVIVAL

Union Evangelistic Services to Begin in January—Enthusiastic Meeting Held Last Evening to Plan Details of the Work.
The following official statement regarding the forthcoming union evangelistic meetings to be held by the uptown churches has been received by The Freeman from the Publicity Committee.
The evangelistic movement of the uptown churches is launched, and an assured success. The enthusiasm runs high and well it may for the prospect is brilliant. Ask those representative men of the city, who have out their shoulders to the wheel. Backed by our best men and women, desired by all upright and deep thinking people, prayed for by every earnest worker, needed by this our beautiful city, who can doubt the glorious results or who can estimate the extent of the results for good.
Last night, in the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church, the second mass meeting of interested men from the various churches was held and sixty-five of the best men of our city were present. Men, who deeply desire the betterment of the people of this municipality and who not only desire it but are ready, willing and capable of putting through the necessary measures to bring it about.
The following is a list of those present from the different churches and of a few interested ones, who were not present. No doubt there are many whose names should appear, who have been unintentionally omitted:
Albany Avenue Baptist—Rev. A. S. Cole, F. B. Matthews, J. W. Matthews, E. P. Snyder, Charles Snyder, C. R. Davis, Chester Green, Bernard Healey, F. N. Godfrey, J. J. Brink, Dr. E. K. Lee, Lester Decker, Dr. Hunker.

The Rev. F. B. Seelye presided and E. G. Adams, chairman of preliminary work, announced the following churches were assigned on cottage prayer meetings:
First Reformed Church—First Ward.
Albany Avenue Baptist Church—Second Ward.
Clinton Avenue Church—Tenth Ward.
Fair Street Reformed Church—Eleventh Ward.
St. James's M. E. Church—Twelfth Ward.
These meetings are to be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, January 12th and 13th, and Tuesday and Wednesday, January 18th and 19th. These cottage meetings are to start two weeks previous to the opening meetings which were decided to be held at St. James's M. E. Church, starting in January 23rd.
Reports were heard from several of the committees already at work and most encouraging progress was evidenced and the unity of spirit among the men was beautiful to see.
To the delight of every one present the announcement was made that Grant Tullar and J. H. Meredith have been engaged after great effort, to attend to the musical part and assist in the conduct of the meetings. Tullar and Meredith are names well known in musical circles and too much cannot be said in their favor.
One of the noticeable features of last night's meeting was the business sagacity with which the business men, by applying themselves to the task, allotted them.
Quiet, systematic, thoroughly or-

SUPERVISORS WAIT FOR COMMITTEES

The board of supervisors held a brief session Thursday night, as most of the committees are busily engaged in the work assigned to them and reported they had not completed their duties. Each committee reported progress.
Supervisor Shook called up the resolution to raise $1,312.50 on the town of Wawarsing to pay bond and interest falling due and moved its adoption. Carried.
On motion of Supervisor Schantz, the board adjourned until Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

ADMITS GUILT AND PAYS FINE OF $3

Mrs. J. Weber Was Arrested for Throwing Stones—Recorder Hopes Peace Will Now Reign in Mapleton.

Thirty men, women and children attended the trial in recorder's court this morning of Mrs. Esther Weber of Snyder avenue, Mapleton, who was arrested on the complaint of her neighbor, Mrs. Elizabeth Elmdorf, who charged Mrs. Weber with chasing her little boy and throwing rocks at the house and at the boy. Mrs. Weber is white and Mrs. Elmdorf is colored. In order to prove her case Mrs. Elmdorf took the witness stand in her own behalf and called as witnesses several neighbors. Mrs. George Halstead of No. 60 Howland avenue, saw the fracas and so did Mrs. Herrick, who resides in the Elmdorf house. Mrs. Herrick said that one of the rocks thrown by Mrs. Weber hit her in the side while she was standing near the kitchen door. Teddy Halstead, 12 years old, and Josie Howard, 13 years old, also testified to the rock throwing.
At the close of the testimony for the plaintiff Mrs. Weber held a consultation with her attorney, F. C. Merritt, and at the close entered a plea of guilty. She was fined $3, which she paid. Recorder Lang informed both sides that he expected peace to reign in Mapleton in the future and that the next time any one disturbed the peace and was found guilty after a trial he would impose a jail sentence and not a fine.

What Ford Hummel Will Play.

SPECIAL GUARDS AT NITRO PLANT

Precaution Taken Against Possible Attack by Secret Crank—Orders for Holland Being Filled.

A force of ten special guards are guarding the plant of the Nitro Powder Company at Mingo Hollow day and night to guard against the possible attack and destruction of the works by a crank.

The company is at present busy turning out a contract for dye stuff and the nature of the contract would not allow for any delay in filling the order, and to protect the plant from any harm which would delay the filling of the contract the special guards have been employed.

There is no reason why an effort should be made to destroy the plant as the orders on hand are for Holland, a neutral nation, and no goods are being made for a belligerent nation. The goods being manufactured are in no way an explosive and the measures being taken are purely a precaution against outside forces.

Owing to the great number of cranks who have been making efforts to destroy mills manufacturing munitions of war or other explosives, Emanuel Metzger, president of the Nitro works, deems it necessary to guard the plant until the present contracts, which must be delivered on time, are filled.

M. DENYS COCHLIN.

FRENCH ENVOY WHO PRESENTED ALLIED CLAIMS TO GREECE.

Denys Cochlin, the French minister representative and member of the new French cabinet, who accompanied Lord Kitchener on his recent visit to the Balkans on a supposed diplomatic mission.

It is said that an ultimatum was presented to King Constantine of Greece, demanding a guarantee that Greece would refrain from interfering. Allied troops should they be forced to retreat from Serbia into Greece.

Four Generations Present.

Mrs. Charlotte Cantine and daughter, Miss Kittle, of Stone Ridge, had at their home for the Thanksgiving dinner a reunion of relatives to meet Mrs. Cantine's son, the Rev. James Cantine, and wife, who have just returned from their missionary field in Arabia. KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 3, 1915.

The remarkable progress made in agriculture by Ulster county in late years, commented on in these columns recently, can be best appreciated by an understanding of the conditions which existed up to a time well within the recollection of our older citizens. For a great many years Ulster was a manufacturing and an industrial rather than a farming county. Large industries were located along the water courses, including the old Delaware & Hudson canal, and elsewhere throughout the county. Cement works, quarries, paper mills, powder plants, carpet factories and other industries attracted to their employment, by reason of the steady work, regular hours and good wages, not only the young men of the farm but many of the old-time farmers themselves. As a result, farming was neglected and became a side issue and in fact for a long period was held in little regard. The rich natural resources of the valleys, hills and mountains were drawn upon, and on many a farm the owner gave more attention to cutting timber and quarrying stone than to tilling the soil. The county was prosperous industrially, but with its farming at a low ebb, conditions were not sound fundamentally, and eventually instead of progress there was decadence.

The industrial activity which competed with and all but submerged agriculture in its bid for the labor and resources of Ulster county, sustained a blow from which it never recovered with the establishment in the United States of Portland cement plants, which previously were confined to Europe. Portland cement rapidly supplanted the natural product. Other branches of industry seemingly were affected more or less by the fate of the Ulster cement trade and few of the large plants which were in operation in former years remain today. Today industry is urbanized, so to speak. Distinct centers of manufacturing have been developed in villages, as in the City of Kingston, and industry no longer competes with but instead supplements and co-operates with agricultural activity in the development and prosperity of old Ulster, which from all points of view has come to occupy a proud position among the counties comprising the Empire State.

The agricultural revival dates back scarcely more than a score of years and apparently is increasing in impetus each year. Few counties have more brilliant prospects than Ulster, whose farmers are progressive and are bringing into use, under the guidance of the Farm Bureau, the most approved methods in the cultivation of the soil. Production is increasing steadily, adding to the wealth of the county, bettering the trade of Kingston and encouraging new industrial enterprises. The value of farm property in the decade 1900-10 increased from $18,314,000 to $29,400,000, or more than 60 per cent, compared with only 35 per cent in the State at large. Only five counties recorded a larger per cent of gain and three of these—Nassau, Queens and Rockland—are in the metropolitan district, where building demands, not agriculture, are responsible chiefly for the appreciation of land values. Only ten counties have a notably larger valuation of farm property than Ulster and the majority of these either have large cities within their boundaries or are close to New York city. If Ulster continues to advance in agriculture as it has, and there is no reason to doubt it will, it will take leading rank among the agricultural counties not only of the State but the country.

Plans for the building up of the mercantile marine will be considered at the annual meeting in Washington next February of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, with which 620 commercial organizations representing 300,000 business men are affiliated. According to a statement of the Chamber, "sixty per cent of the big and able steamers of the world are owned by Great Britain and less than 7 per cent by the United States." Our manufacturers have to rely on the ships of other nations to carry their goods to distant markets, and as the owners of these ships have preferential arrangements in many instances with the manufacturers of their own countries, American shippers are at a disadvantage in entering new fields and getting their cargoes delivered promptly. It is estimated that every year $300,000,000 leaves the United States in payment for freight, Americans contributing not only to the upkeep but indirectly to the construction of ships of their maritime competitors. Never have conditions been more favorable for the upbuilding of a mercantile marine to carry American goods and also be available for national defense, and it is the duty of Congress to enact such legislation as may be necessary to bring this about.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Wife—"You know, Henry, I speak as I think." Hub—"Yes, my love; only oftener."—Boston Transcript.

Hotel Clerk (making out his bill)—"And did you take a bath, sir?" Guest—"Vy iss der von missing?"—Life.

"Have you ever stopped to consider the number of trivial questions people ask?" remarked the fussy man. "No," answered the placid individual. "If I stopped to consider them I might try to answer a few."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"What has become of the candidate who used to have his photo taken beside a load of hay?" "He may be a little out of date. However, no candidate has as yet mustered up the nerve to have his photo taken beside a stock ticker."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Of course, we try to make you feel at home here," said the manager of the hotel. "Well," replied Mr. Cumrox, "you succeeded. The waiters stood around and criticised the way I selected my food and handled the tableware pretty much the way the folks at home do."—Washington Star.

Telling Secrets.

"B-e-d spells bed," said the teacher for the twentieth time to her backward pupil. "Now, do you understand, Tommy?"

"Yes," said Tommy, glibly.

"Well, c-a-t spells cat, d-o-g spells dog, and b-e-d spells—what did I tell you that b-e-d spells?"

"I've forgot, miss," whispered Tommy, contritely.

"What, you don't know what b-e-d spells after all that I've told you?"

Tommy shook his head.

"Oh, Tommy!" mourned the teacher. Well, once more, b-e-d spells what you sleep in. Now what do you sleep in?"

"My shirt," shouted Tommy, triumphantly.—Chicago Herald.

Milk and Honey.

"Daisy," remarked the teacher, "don't love your cat too much. What would you do if it died—you wouldn't see it again?" "Oh, yes; I should see it in heaven." "No, dear, you're mistaken; animals cannot go to heaven like people." Daisy's eyes filled with tears, but suddenly she exclaimed triumphantly: "Animals do go to heaven, for the Bible says the promised land is flowing with milk and honey and, if there are no animals, where do they get the milk?"—Tit-Bits.

Seeing Through a Man.

He was very fond of playing jokes on his wife, and this time he thought he had got a winner.

"My dear," he said, as they sat over supper, "just heard such a sad story of a young girl today. They thought she was going blind, and so a surgeon operated on her and found—"

"Yes?" gasped his wife breathlessly.

"That she'd got a young man in her eyes," ended the husband with a chuckle.

For a moment there was silence. Then the lady remarked slowly: "Well, it would all depend on what sort of a man it was. Some of them she could have seen through easily enough."—New York Telegraph.

Disastrous.

"Stop the train!" yelled the excited passenger. "My suit case fell out of the window."

"You can't expect us to stop the limited to pick up a suit case," said the conductor.

"Listen here," pleaded the excited one. "I'm the manager of this musical comedy company in the car ahead and that suit case contains all the costumes for our chorus."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

WATER FLOWS INTO HILLVIEW BASIN

Yonkers Reservoir of Catskill System Will Take Three Weeks to Fill Up—New York City Consumers Not to be Supplied Until Next Fall.

The gates of the Hillview reservoir at Yonkers, one of the great storage basins of the Catskill aqueduct system, just completed after six years work and an expenditure of three and a half million dollars, were thrown open this week and the water is flowing in at the rate of forty million gallons a day. The reservoir has a capacity of nine hundred million gallons, so that it will take three weeks to fill up.

Next fall the City of New York will celebrate in a fitting manner the completion of the great water supply system, regarded as next to the Panama Canal as an engineering feat.

The Yonkers storage basin is one of four reservoirs in the system which is to supply New York City with its water. At present the city consumes in one day more than half the supply that Hillview will hold. The largest basin is the Ashokan, which has a capacity of 130,000,000 gallons, enough to supply the city for nine months.

The gates at Ashokan were opened on November 18 and the water traveled the 75 miles through the great tunnel to Kensico reservoir, at Valhalla, running in at the rate of 300,000,000 gallons a day. This reservoir holds 40,000,000 gallons and cost $10,000,000 to construct.

Hillview reservoir is third in size. The fourth large basin is at Silver Lake, Staten Island.

The Catskill water supply at Hillview will probably not be sent through the tunnel of New York city until February, as there is still some work to be done on the lower contract. And while the water will be ready then for consumption in New York it will not be sent into the city pipes until the formal opening next fall.

Curious to See The Big War

He Saw More Than He Cared to.

By F. A. MITCHEL

Desiring to see something of the great European war, I resolved to go abroad and visit the armies of both opposing forces. Fortifying myself with a passport from the state department at Washington, I sailed for England on an American steamer. The change in the conditions from peace to war were evident from the time I went aboard the ship. Baggage was searched for explosives, passports were examined—indeed, every precaution was used common among people who have thrown off that confidence in each other that results from peace.

As soon as our ship reached the zone that the Germans had proclaimed to be in a state of war the boats were swung out over the water, into a position to be stepped into from the deck, an evidence of the fact that though we were on an American liner we were in danger. Then the passengers began to strap on their life belts, and some of them did not again turn in while we were on the water. Every night an enormous American flag was hung so that its full length and width would be displayed, illuminated by rows of electric lights. This was to show commanders of submarines our nationality.

Since I had come from home to see something of war I confess all this interested me. Time came before my return when I had had quite enough of war and was glad to return to a country where a condition of peace existed. Having crossed the channel, I approached the rear of the English army. The dead-end in the trenches had by this time settled down upon all the armies in France and Belgium. The great drives of the Germans for Calais were over, and during a good deal of the time the men in the trenches were idle. While visiting the British trenches a truce occurred between the men of both sides. The Germans put up a sign: "Let's have a rest today. No firing." The British assented, and the men were swapping articles in common use. This gave me a more quiescent view of war than when I was in danger of being blown up on the ocean. As I proceeded my own individual experience became more and more peaceful, though I was unknowingly in the greatest danger of my life.

From visiting the English lines I went to the French. Of course I visited headquarters, showed my passport and asked permission to inspect the trenches. On my way there I met a fellow countryman, who told me that it would be impossible for me to get a permit for he had just been refused. Either an attack was expected or one was to be made. At any rate, there was some reason why all permits were refused. However, I resolved to try, and, assuming a look of confidence, I did not feel. I approached the officer charged with the granting of passes and asked to be permitted to visit the trenches.

He looked at me inquiringly, then, asking me to wait a moment, went into another room—for the officers were in a house—and upon his return sat down at a table and wrote me the desired permit. I was very much astonished. However, I gave no sign of surprise and after thanking him was walking out when he said to me: "You will need a guide. If you will wait a moment I will provide you with one."

Calling an orderly, he sent him out, and the man returned in a few minutes with a young lieutenant, whom he introduced to me, but before sending me forth under the lieutenant's guidance he took him into another room.

I visited the trenches nearest headquarters and found a different state of affairs from what I had hit upon on the British line. We were obliged to descend before reaching those at the front in order to avoid being shot. Every man was on the qui vive, ready to put a ball into any enemy who showed even the tip of a finger. When I had seen all I wished to see I left the trench and, thanking my conductor, was about to set off in an opposite direction from headquarters when he said politely that Colonel Arnoux, the officer who had given me my permit, would like to see me again. Of course, I returned with him, and when I entered the colonel looked up from the table at which he was writing and bade me sit in a chair beside him.

"Have you visited the other side?" he asked.

"What other side?"

"The Germans."

"Not yet, but I expect to do so."

"Let me see your passport."

He had examined the document which I had shown him when I first met him. I took it from my pocket and handed it to him. He glanced at it and tossed it on the table.

"How do you expect to get to the other side?" he asked.

"By hook or crook," I replied, "unless you will have the goodness to pass me through your lines."

He thought a moment, then said that he would have to refer the matter to one of higher rank than himself, but he thought it possible that I might be accommodated. But, of course, the authorities must have confidence that I was all that I purported to be. Firstly, he would keep my passport for awhile. American passports had been forged, and it would be advisable to have mine critically examined. Meanwhile the colonel would be pleased to provide me with quarters. There was a vacant room in the house which would be at my disposal, and he would be happy to have me eat at his mess.

This suited my plans exactly. I would be a guest at headquarters and might get passed through the lines without having to go to Holland or some other neutral region. The colonel showed me to my room himself and later took me to lunch with him, introducing me to the officers of his mess. Having lunched, I was permitted to go where I liked and spent the afternoon visiting all things, not on the firing line, pertaining to war, in which they being new to me—I was greatly interested. During my perambulations I noticed a sergeant who seemed to be everywhere I was. If I stood gazing at some enormous guns that had recently reached the front, he was not far away examining a pile of firearms taken from the enemy in a recent fight. If I was curiously observing an armed auto he was tossing about some empty shells and fragments that had been sent from German guns. However, presuming that my seeing him near me so frequently was coincidence, I thought nothing about it.

At the evening meal Colonel Arnoux raised me on the softness of my voice and the absence of a beard, saying that I would make up well for a woman. I told him that during my university studies when a Greek play was given I was assigned a woman's part. Thereupon the colonel remarked that German men spies had been captured disguised as women and laughingly suggested that I might make a good thing doing secret service work for the French in woman's clothes. Seeing that I did not take kindly to the suggestion, he turned the subject.

The next morning I was awakened by an officer—one I had met at the mess table—opening my door, carrying some articles of woman's apparel. He ordered me in a very decided tone to put them on. Astounded beyond measure I asked him what he meant, whereupon he told me to do as he bade me and at once. Being impressed with the fact that he meant me harm if I disobeyed, I robed myself in the articles and was ordered out into another room where a dozen officers and men stood staring at me critically.

After they had looked me over I was ordered back to my room and left to change my clothes. When I attempted to emerge again I found a sentry at the door who pushed me back with his gun.

It was evident that something had gone wrong, but what it was I could not tell. I remained in confinement all day, but when evening came it brought Colonel Arnoux, who, dismissing my guard, invited me to come out.

"I must apologize to you," he said. "For the treatment you have received. The truth is, a woman who greatly resembles you came into our camps a few days ago and mysteriously disappeared. I gave her a permit to visit her brother in the trenches, but it was learned that no such person was there. It was apparent that she was a spy, and we suspected that she was a man in woman's clothes. This afternoon she was caught hiding in an abandoned trench in our rear."

I shuddered, at the same time breathing a sigh of relief.

"I congratulate you," the colonel continued, "upon having escaped death, and I admit that your escape was a narrow one. Upon your inspection in woman's apparel by a number of persons who had seen the other party nine out of twelve pronounced you the same person as she. For my part I was convinced of your identity with her the moment I saw you. You were to have been shot tomorrow morning."

Pale as death, I caught at a mantle for support. The colonel went to a closet, took out a bottle and a glass, poured out a tumbler half full of liquor and bade me drink it. Having been thus fided over the shock, I pulled myself together and told Colonel Arnoux that, with his permission, I would take my departure.

"Would you like to see the person who you were supposed to be?" he asked.

"Thank you, no. Is the party man or woman?"

"Woman—a refined lady."

"I suppose, in that case, she will not be proceeded against."

"The colonel's face took on a curious expression."

"She is not a spy?" I asked.

"A very flagrant case of spying."

"But," I stammered, "you would not execute a woman?"

The reply came after a brief silence.

"My friend," he said, "in this war we have gone back to those times when this country was Gaul. Our warfare has dropped the veneering it assumed under civilization. We are fighting a life and death struggle."

My curiosity had vanished. I did not request to be passed to the German lines. I took the first passage I could get for England. Before I got a ship for America a Zeppelin dropped a bomb within a hundred feet of me. I was picked up senseless and taken to a hospital. In a week I sailed for home, and just before leaving port a liner was torpedoed and the wrecked survivors were brought in, the most pitiful lot I ever saw. All the way over I sat up with a life belt about me, my shoes and outer clothing loosened so that I would be ready for the water at any moment. Upon my arrival at home I was heart by questions from eager persons to tell them all about the war. My invariable reply was that, to get a clear idea of it, they must go and see it themselves. Asked how I liked it, I replied that it was splendid.

Pretty Clever Idea.

How do you manage to turn away so many applicants for positions in the Corps without hurting their feelings?

Why Tolerate Catarrh?

You have noticed, no doubt, that any cold aggravates nasal catarrh, and the flow of mucous amazes you that such objectionable matter could find lodgment in your head. To ignore this catarrh when the cold subsides is wrong because it continues to slowly injure the delicate linings of the nasal passages and clog them up.

To correct catarrh, cleanse the nostrils frequently with a solution of warm water and salt, insert vaseline on retiring, and take a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion after meals for one month. Scott's acts through the blood to feed the tissues, and contains soothing glycerine to check the inflammation and heal the sensitive membranes.

Scott's is pleasant to take.

PRIVATE CHARLES FARMER.
OLDEST RECRUIT IN BRITISH ARMY.

Private Charles Farmer.

London, Dec. 3.—Lord Derby's recruiting campaign has not only induced the backward to come forward and enlist, but has also given hope to many patriotic but supposedly ineligible Englishmen that after all they may be allowed to fight for their country. When a man is 78 years old, for instance, he would scarcely consider himself fit for a soldier's duties, yet a man of that age has enlisted. He is Charles Farmer, a hero of the Crimean war, who has been out of the army for 44 years. He listened to one of Lord Derby's emissaries making a speech and fired with enthusiasm enlisted and was accepted. He is now a member of the King's Shropshire Light Infantry. He is a native of Shrewsbury, a joiner by trade. The doctors who examined him declared him "physically sound."

Circumlocution.
"Just what is meant by circumlocution?" asked the seeker after knowledge.

Farm and Garden

FARM WELLS AND POLLUTION.

Clean Water an Important Consideration on Every Farm.

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture)

Perhaps the most important consideration in connection with the farm water supply is to get clean water. It has often been considered that clean water was clean water and that clean water must be used. Neither one of these conditions is necessarily true. Water may be visibly polluted and at the same time be beautifully clear and sparkling. It may be clear and yet contain the invisible and deadly germs of typhoid fever or other intestinal disorders. It may also contain considerable poisonous matters in solution. A polluted water supply is evidence of the existence of bad sanitary conditions, which it is of the utmost importance to remedy. On the other hand, many waters that are not clear cannot be regarded as unclean nor their use prejudicial to health. Many surface waters have a greenish or brownish tint from vegetable status, and mineral waters frequently impart more or less color to spring and ground waters. In some cases such waters, instead of proving harmful to health have proved to be decidedly beneficial. With the growth of population and development of industries there is progressive pollution of streams so that in the more thickly settled regions streams not already contaminated or subject to pollution are very rare. Surface water supplies from small streams should never be used for household purposes unless no other supply is available. In the event that it must be used such water should be clear and should be thoroughly boiled.

The well is the most commonly used source of farm water supply. It may be a shallow dug or driven well or a deep dug or bored well. It may be said, however, that the majority of shallow dug wells on farms where contamination is present are contaminated. The government sanitary engineer offers the following practical suggestions for locating different types of wells, especially shallow wells, from pollution.

Obviously the logical first step in securing a clean well water supply on the farm or anywhere else is to remove all the sources of possible contamination. Among the worst of these are the open privy vault, the leaching cess-pool and barnyard filth. A well in ordinary pervious soil located lower than and within a hundred feet of any of these is almost certain to be polluted. Even though the well is located on higher ground than these sources of contamination, heavy pumping or dry weather may so lower the ground water level that it will reach the zone of contamination and thus pollute the well. It is evident, therefore, that the open privy vault and leaching cess-pool should be discarded and a sewage purification system or at least a sanitary privy be used instead. Sewage, garbage, manure or other waste should never be dumped into sinks or fissures and must certainly never be dumped into old abandoned wells. An old well used for this purpose is very likely to communicate directly with the water bearing stratum from which other wells in the immediate vicinity draw their supply. Sinks or waste water should never be thrown out of the back door or window on to the ground. If the pigs and chickens must run at large they should at least be kept away from the well. A box built around the pump and filled with manure in winter is an extremely unsafe way to prevent the pump from freezing.

Concrete manure pits, impervious floors and water tight drains are desirable features for farm buildings. If these are beyond the farmer's purse the manure pile should be placed a safe distance away from the well.

The well itself should be located as high as possible with respect to build ings, stock pens and chicken yards and as far away from all sources of contamination as convenience and local surroundings will permit.

PROOF COINS.

They Are Always Struck From New and Specially Prepared Dies.

Proof coins have been struck at the Philadelphia mint for many years, but at no other mint, to be sold to collectors. A premium of about 10 per cent is charged when a lot includes coins of all denominations. For minor proof sets, however, when ordered separately, a little more than double the face value is charged.

The coins are struck from new and specially prepared dies on planchets previously furnished, a hand press instead of the regular steam press being used. When there is a smooth field around the raised portion of a coin the finishing gives the surface a lasting brilliancy that is very attractive.

Our silver coins still have such a luster, but the gold coins, particularly the $5 and $25 pieces, and the minor coins no longer present this desirable feature. In fact, outside of the lines being a little finer, proofs of these coins differ little in appearance from pieces struck for regular circulation.

The incised inscriptions on the gold coins do not harmonize with the field as did the old raised inscriptions, while on the minor coins the field is not smooth, and the nickel has really no field, an excess of lettering obscuring what is not monopolized by the Indian head and the buffalo. The $20 and $10 pieces present artistic designs, but proofs of these coins are far from being as attractive as were those of the old designs.—Pittsburgh Press.

A LEDGE AND A MINE.

How a Learned Lawyer Was Taught to Distinguish Between Them.

Let not distinguished counsel from any eastern or western bar please themselves upon their fancied superiority to their frontier brethren. The litigation which attends upon rich mineral discoveries often tempts the keenest intellects to the forums of the frontier, and an imported counsel is, in his ignorance of local customs and local nomenclature, liable to make a bad break.

A distinguished New England lawyer who was imported by a Boston capitalist to take charge of a big mining suit delivered himself of a lengthy philippic against a witness who had testified that a mine was in a certain locality and who a year before had testified that it was in another locality a quarter of a mile distant. "Did he lie then, or is he lying now?" said the imported lawyer.

"The learned counsel from afar," answered his opponent, "is an apt illustration of the proverb that a little learning—and in his case such a very little—is a dangerous thing. He confuses a mine with a ledge. The locality of a ledge cannot, of course, be changed, but the locality of a mine, which is the work upon a ledge, may be, as in this case, placed at one point today and in six months may be at another point a quarter of a mile or more away."—Case and Comment.

CHARLES ALBERT BENDER.

BENDER SUING FEDS FOR $8,666.

Charles Albert Bender.

Big Chief Bender, the former Athletic pitcher, released by the Federal last season, has instituted suit to collect salary to the amount of $8,666.64 on his unexpired contract with the Baltimore club.

Bender denies that he was not in condition as alleged by the owners of the Federal Club and intimates that there were other reasons why he was let go.

Price Story Brilliant.

Gems from a recent short story prize competition:

"Oh, if my poor old mother could sit up in her cold, cold grave and see me, how happy she would be."

"Madeline seated herself at twilight on the wisterized piazza."

"Erhel decided to prepare something appetizing for her husband's supper."

"Adelaide was accustomed to have her fractious horse brought around every morning before breakfast, so that she might take an exhilarating gallop through the Paris boulevards."—Bookman.

Economy Hints

A penny saved is a penny earned.—Benjamin Franklin.

TEXTILES of one kind or another make an important part of the changeable equipment of a house. Carpets, rugs, curtains, furniture covering, household linen, blankets, etc., all come under this heading. A general knowledge of the different fibers—cotton, wool, silk, linen, etc.—of which these materials are made, the effect and durability of different dyes, the values of the different methods of cleaning, etc., would evidently be a help to the practical housekeeper. Much has been written regarding color, design and other matters pertaining to household textiles from the standpoint of the fine arts, but many of the other questions, especially regarding durability, strength, etc., have not as yet been systematically studied. Some of those which bear most directly on every day household processes are being investigated by the government by laboratory methods, and it is hoped that as useful results may be obtained as have been gained from the scientific investigations of food materials. In the meanwhile, general practical experience is a great help in selecting such furnishings.

Tacked down carpets and matings mean too much work in cleaning to be recommended, and movable rugs of some kind are much to be preferred. Rugs large enough to cover the whole floor are not as easy to handle, but stay in place better than small ones. In choosing rugs, those which are firmly woven and which lie flat should be selected. If they are too thin or loosely woven they will work up into wrinkles or ridges, especially if they are large. Good oriental rugs are very beautiful and wear a long time, but they are too expensive to be generally used in the majority of homes. Carpet rugs are now manufactured in a great variety of shapes, sizes, materials and designs, and are very satisfactory. Some of the best are those adapted from oriental ones. Good Brussels and some of the firmer of the pile carpetings are excellent, as are also those which resemble the heavy, old fashioned three ply ingrainings. Old fashioned rag rugs and their modern imitations have an attractive, pleasing style of their own. They are especially appropriate for bedrooms and bathrooms, but are often too thin for places where there is constant passing. Matting rugs, which now come in good tones of the standard colors, often prove useful, though they are not so durable as good wool. They are particularly suitable for warm climates.

Soft colors and inconspicuous flames wear better to the eye and harmonize better with the other furnishings than gaudy figures on a bright background. The rugs should tone in with the coloring of the walls and should ordinarily be darker in shade than the latter, not only because they show soil less, but also because they seem to bring the room and its furniture into their proper relations.

FOR HOME NURSING.

How to Care For Bottles and Medicines During Sickness.

One of the first lessons a nurse learns is to pour out medicine from the side of the bottle opposite to that on which the label is pasted in order that any drops of the liquid which escape down the side when pouring will not obliterate the directions and number of the prescription.

As soon as a medicine bottle is empty and if it is not to be replenished right away it should be marked and put out of the way until needed again. Many doctors insist upon the prescriptions being written on the label of the bottle by the druggist. This makes it easier for reference if he decides to go back to an old formula. It also makes it possible for the nurse to know what is being given and makes it less dangerous to have empty bottles or unused medicines around.

It is never safe to give medicine from a long unused bottle unless either the prescription is marked on it or it has been plainly marked for what purpose it was used before. Otherwise it is better to refer the prescription number to the druggist who made it up and get him to identify it. If these means of identification were always adhered to there would be fewer mistakes made.

After an illness is over and the patient convalescent, clear out all the medicines it is not necessary to keep. An accumulation of old prescriptions is rarely of use again and the bottles clutter up the medicine closet. Empty bottles are sometimes useful, but if they are kept they should be carefully washed out and the labels erased so that they will be ready for an emergency and not spoiled by the drying up of the contents.

How to Satisfactorily Clean Genuine Pewter Ware.

A shop which makes a specialty of genuine pewter ware says that in cleaning pewter whiting or any good silver powder can be used. The polish should, however, first be mixed with olive oil, machine oil or vaseline, or even kerosene, and then rubbed all over the object. Then wipe it off and polish with the dry powder applied with a soft cloth.

THE HOLY GRAIL.

Story of the Green Crystal Vase of the Ruins of Caesars.

Few places are more absolutely cities of the past than Caesars. Some one has spoken of the remains of its ancient glory as the "ruin of ruins." The medieval town which was twice rebuilt by the crusaders covered scarcely a tenth of the area occupied by the city as St. Paul knew it, and the ruins that we see today are chiefly the relics of the medieval city, which was itself built out of the ruins of the ancient city.

What a rich quarry Caesars has been for other city builders is shown by the fact that, though it has been drawn upon for all these centuries for marble and granite and sandstone, it is not yet absolutely exhausted, but still affords building material for the peasants of the vicinity.

The green crystal vase which was found here when Baldwin I, the great crusader, captured the city at the beginning of the twelfth century, says the Christian Herald, gave rise to the story of the Holy Grail, which has inspired so many legends and poems, for Baldwin and his followers believed that it was the one that was used at the last supper by our Lord, when he gave his disciples the cup of wine and said: "Drink ye all of it. This do in remembrance of me."

SEX ATTRACTION.

It is the Controlling Force In About Every Human Effort.

We cannot escape from the fact that sex attraction is the great event in human life. Sex is the controlling force in nearly all of human efforts. War, for instance, is only an exaggerated form of the sex instinct. Neither literature nor art would exist in any appreciable degree without sex. Men work, fight, sing, paint, live and die for the love of woman.

In only one field of human activity is there no taint of sex feeling, and that is science. Science is cold and dispassionate. It has imagination, but the imagination of the explorer and not the lover. Science has only one aim and end—the discovery of truth. Science is another world from the hot earth of economic and military competition, which have for their ends the attainment of love and marriage.

Through science mankind will gradually throw off some of the sex slavery and reach a new and possibly happier stage in its development.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The Story of a Long Name.

A northern man who was visiting in Baltimore stopped on the street one day to have his shoes polished. A bright eyed little black boy stepped forward to give the desired shine. Becoming interested in the little chap, the northerner asked his name, to which the boy promptly replied:

"After a few moments of silence the northerner continued, 'I suppose that is an abbreviation for General.'"

The word "abbreviation" came the little fellow pause. However, he was equal to the occasion and recovered himself. "No, sah," he said, "that's 'actly dat. Ma shore 'nough name am Genesis xxx, 33, So Shall My Righteousness Answer for Me in Time to Come Washington Carter, but dey jest calls me Gen for short!"—Tenth's Companion.

Antiquity of the Hog.

The two most important and most intimately associated products of Indiana are corn and hogs. The Chinese claim to have bred and domesticated the hog 4,000 years before the Christian era. The ancient Egyptians knew the hog, and this animal is depicted on their monuments. The use of the meat of the hog was prohibited by the Jews, and it was considered that in hot countries it produced skin diseases. The Moslems under Mohammedan law are also prohibited from using pork. The hog was unknown in America until introduced from Europe by the early navigators. In the South American forests are great droves of wild hogs, the descendants of hogs brought over by the Spaniards.—Chicago Journal.

A Match For Him.

A cockney angler, thinking his highland boatman was not treating him with the respect due to his station, expostulated thus:

"Look here, my good man, you don't seem to grasp who I am. Do you know that my family has been entitled to bear arms for the last 200 years?" "Hoos; that's nothing!" was the reply. "My ancestors have been entitled to bare legs for the last 2,000 years."—London Mirror.

Had to Cater to All.

"I don't like the way this hotel is run!" cried a peevish young traveling salesman. "Neither do I," replied the landlord of Pruntytown tavern. "but I've got to entertain all the fools that come along as well as the sensible people."—Judge.

Either Way.

Silence—I can't decide which one of those two girls I want to marry. Cynicism—Well, marry either one of them and you'll discover that you got the wrong one.—Philadelphia Record.

All a Risk.

"It's a case of love at first sight." "Well, maybe it will work out all right. I took four years to select my husband, and look what I got!"—Detroit Free Press.

Realize that doing good is the only certainly happy action of a man's life.—Sir Philip Sidney.

COLUMBIA GRAFONOLA

THE Columbia Grafonola is a musical instrument of magnificent range and power, yet capable of the utmost delicacy of expression.

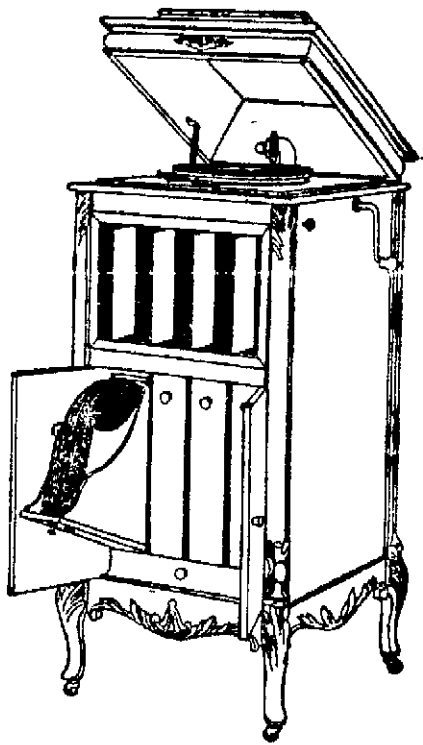

The wonderful Columbia sound-chamber, as responsive to every slightest vibration as the body of a cello; the sensitive Columbia reproducer; the perfected tone-arm and the tone-control "leaves" that operate on the principle of an organ's shutter—all exclusive Columbia features, representing the highest developments of acoustic science—give the Columbia Grafonola a clearness and flexibility of tone not even approximated in any sound-reproducing instrument heretofore devised.

The musicianly qualities of the Columbia Grafonola, and the matchless fidelity of Columbia records have made both pre-eminently the choice of musicians of discrimination. "Hearing is Believing." That is the final test.

Dealers will be glad to arrange for a demonstration in your home.

ORIGIN OF NICKNAMES

How "Pie" Way Got His Name Is Shrouded in Mystery.

Only Reason Aleck Wilson Escaped Appellation of "Tug" Seems to Be That Somebody Saw the Other Wilson First.

Nicknames of college athletes spring from obscure sources, one of which is an athletic predecessor. Oakes, the Yale guard, is trying to dodge the sobriquet of "Rebel," which, apparently, some distant admirer bestowed upon him because it had been previously tacked upon a professional big league baseball player.

In a similar way, Johnny Reilly, Yale's remarkable third baseman, had the handle "Long John" prefixed to the "Reilly" in designating him because years ago there lived a Cincinnati third baseman who responded to the same call.

Wilson, the Yale end rush, apparently lacked a nickname when he reported for football work, and someone in the sidelines who keeps abreast of pugilists' doings, wished upon him the title "Tug" as a prefix. The only reason that Aleck Wilson, the quarterback, escaped the appellation seems to be that it saw the other Wilson first.

It is told that a Harvard raiser of technicalities objected to Carter playing end for Yale, because he noted by the newspapers that Carter was labeled "Nick" which had been literally the "nick" name given to a player by the name of Carter at Yale five or six years previously, and he was unable to see how Carter could continue to be eligible indefinitely. It was soberly explained to him that, to every Carter who reported for football at Yale and who was good enough to get into a game, the handle "Nick" was given.

It was not explained, for the Harvard man didn't remain long enough to listen, that the first "Nick" Carter at Yale wore his title more accurately true to traditions of the dime novel hero than the present "Nick," who is the son of a clergyman and a most quiet, unassuming young man, and who, if he did not possess a sense of keen humor, would resent the title of "Nick." But the bravest Yale athlete dare not defy an invading nickname.

The origin of the forename, "Pie," with which Way, the guard and baseball pitcher, was "nicknamed," has been shrouded in mystery. Had he been termed "High" Way the title would have seemed broader, more enduring and more harmonious. The explanation came from a friend who was acquainted with Way's lunch habits. More than a decade ago there was a Yale player named Brown who was given the nickname "Skim." Henceforth, as long as Browns joined the Yale football squad, they were known as "Skim." This may be the reason that Browns stopped joining the squad.

CHANGE EXPECTED IN RULES

Athletic Authorities of Harvard, Yale and Princeton to Fix New Code of Eligibility.

indications point to a possible upheaval in college athletic standards during the coming winter. There will be a conference within a short time between the athletic authorities of Harvard, Yale and Princeton with the idea of preparing a new code of eligibility.

In the middle West undergraduates have voted by overwhelming majorities to permit the playing of summer baseball by the players of the universities where votes were taken.

What influence this expression of student sentiment will have on the conference authorities cannot be told at this time, but it is evident that there is a strong demand for a broader and more elastic code for the governing of the undergraduate athlete.

DADDY LONGLEGS.

He is Harmless, He Doesn't Bite, and He Isn't a Spider.

Don't call a daddy longlegs a spider, because he isn't. Spiders bite and have poison glands. This insect is perfectly harmless. It isn't just pleasant to have one of them crawl up your arm or down your neck, but you're just as safe as when he isn't there—ten times safer than the insect is just at that moment. He's not only harmless, but so common that you'll find him almost any place in the world where it's warm enough for him to exist.

In good old American language we call him daddy longlegs. Maybe you've heard him called harvest man or grandfather graybeard. He has eight long legs bowed in the middle, so that when he's standing up his little round body almost touches the ground where he walks. He also has two eyes and two placers, which you will see if you examine him closely.

From midsummer to late autumn daddy longlegs scampers about over rocks, tree trunks, gets in the picnic marmalade in the park, crawls up the fisherman's neck along the stream, collects in barns and has a general good time. Few of them survive the winter.

In Mammoth cave, Kentucky, the daddy longlegs are blind.—Philadelphia North American.

LEMBERG RICH IN NAMES.

It Has Had Twenty-seven Different Ones in Its Career.

Many cities are known by more than one name, but it is given to few to rejoice in more than half a dozen distinctive cognomens. But the historic Gallician city of Lemberg has been known at one time or another by no less than twenty-seven different appellations.

According to the Polish Bulletin, the ancient Ruthenian names for Lwow were Lwow, Lwiv, Lwivrad, Lwivrod, Lwiv; the Germans called it Lemberg, Lemberg, Lemberg, Leowenburg; the Latin and pseudo Latin names include Lebburga, Lamburga, Leontopolis, Leone, Liviv, Leopolda; in the Ruthenian it was called Lwov, the Greeks as Litbon and Litbada.

The patriarchs of Constantinople, Alexandria and Jerusalem referred to it as Leovios and Leonopolis; the Turks call it in their books Illi, Ibo, Ilobot, Ilibow, Ilibadir; the Armenians gave to it the name of Ilof; the Russians have lately baptized it Lwoff.

The real name of the city, it is asserted, is the Polish one of Lwow, which literally translated means Lion City.

Why Boiled Water Freezes Easily.

Water which is hot, of course, cannot freeze until it has parted with its heat, but water that has been boiled will, other things being equal, freeze sooner than water which has not been boiled. A slight disturbance of water disposes it to freeze more rapidly, and this is the cause which accelerates the freezing of boiled water. The water that has been boiled has lost the air naturally contained in it, which on exposure to the atmosphere it begins again to attract and absorb. During this process of absorption a motion is necessarily produced among its particles, slight certainly and imperceptible, yet probably sufficient to accelerate its congelation. In unboiled water this disturbance does not exist. Indeed, water when kept perfectly still can be reduced several degrees below the freezing point without its becoming ice.

Life in a Nutshell.

"Stop, look, listen." A reflective man was reading this railroad sign. "Those three words illustrate the whole scheme of life," said he. "As to how? 'You see a pretty girl. You stop. You look. After you marry her you listen.'—Louisville Courier-Journal.

How He Ranked.

"As nearly as I can make out," said the supercilious person, "he is what they call a literary hack." "No," replied Mr. Penwidge, "he is not even a hack. He's a jittney."—Washington Star.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Dec. 3.—Percy Haughton is the wizard of the gridiron. The plegkian game never has known a more wonderful teacher. Those who were skeptical about Haughton's skill, of Haughton's genius, are skeptical no longer.

When the season began it was regarded as the season that would test Haughton—would answer the all-absorbing question—

Was it the wizardry of Haughton or the natural football power of his men that made fame in the other years?

The answer is:—Percy Haughton. The Crimson Coach found a difficult task confronting him when the season began. Brickley was gone, so was Hardwick and so were Pennock, Logan, Francke, Trumbull, Underwood and those other stars. None of the satellites of other years except Eddie Mahan was left. Haughton had to build around Mahan with "green" materials—and he built a superb machine.

Haughton's Coaching Methods.

What is Haughton's system? A simple one. He never directly wastes his time on really raw material. He lets his assistants do that and he handles only the semi-finished article.

When the football candidates present themselves Haughton spends a few days looking over the assortment of newcomers. He has uncanny and lightning-like judgment in picking out real players from among a bunch of raw recruits. After he has looked over his whole squad Haughton picks out his veterans of the year before, selects a dozen promising looking youngsters as candidates for the places on the substitute varsity. He leaves the development of the others to his assistants.

Haughton has his own theories about developing men, and his assistants follow his dictates. Above all else, Haughton is boss. He demands obedience from his men and the absolute following of his rules by his assistants.

If Haughton, after experimenting for a while with his varsity candidates finds that some of them don't measure up to standard he turns them over to his assistants. When Haughton needs new additions to his first string squad he sends an order to his assistants thusly: "I want a halfback; fellow who is fast, weighing between 170 and 180, or, I want a guard, or, I want an end—one who is good at handling the forward pass." And Haughton's orders are filled, because his assistants know they are subject to just such calls and they are prepared for them.

Haughton is a Driver.

The Crimson mentor is a driver. He works to the full limit of his energy—puts his whole heart and soul into his work—and he expects his men to do the same thing. He will not countenance sloth. Every man who wants to play on a Harvard eleven under the Haughton regime must be willing to stand up under the strain of scrambling 24 hours a day should Haughton decide that such an amount was necessary.

Haughton isn't talkative, on the football field or off. He talks rarely—but always to the point. He never wastes a word. His orders to his men are brief as far as speech is concerned. The tone of his voice and his nervous gestures fill the gaps that the words may leave. And no one ever misunderstands a Haughton command.

"To what do you attribute football success?" Haughton was asked. And Haughton answered: "To work—hard work—and plenty of it."
